Pamplin petition issue

Harrison: 'I'm staying'

By FRANCES PAULETTE

"I'm staying."

With these words, Pamplin City Mayor Patrick Harrison calmly responded to a petition requesting his resignation that was presented to the Pamplin Town Council at Tuesday evening's meeting.

Kenneth Tolbert, resident of the Town of Pamplin and registered voter, read a copy of the petition before the mayor and council members.

"We have consulted an attorney," said Tolbert, after reading the document, "and he will present the original petition to the circuit court if the mayor refuses to resign."

"This action," said Bert Peter's following the meeting, " is pending support of the petition from council." Peters is owner and operator of Peter's Country Store on Main Street in Pamplin.

Following Tolbert's reading of the petition, Peters addressed council and asked, "Do any of you council members wish to support the petition tonight while we're here by signing it?"

There was no response.

"I am disappointed," Peters said after the meeting. "In the council members who would not come forward in the meeting tonight in support of the petition that they helped to word and design."

The petition, which contains more than fifty signatures has been hanging on the wall of Peter's Store for more than a month.

The consensus is that Pamplin residents are not finding fault with Harrison as man, but rather "with his performance or rather lack of performance as mayor," according to Peters.

The Rev. Clarence Bowen, who was seated in the crowd of approximately 30 who were present for the meeting, stood and spoke in defense of the mayor.

"I'd like to speak on behalf of Mayor Harrison," he said. "I don't care how he dresses, just that he does his job. I am glad he has decided to stay," Bowen said.

Details regarding the petition's future were not available at press time.

School Board to meet

The Appomattox County School Board will meet in regular session Wednesday (Dec. 15) at 3 p.m. in the school board office on Main Street.

In addition to the regular reports, board members will consider bids on gasoline and fuel oil, and change orders for the county's primary and elementary school renovation projects.

THE BEANS WERE COOKING Friday afternoon on the Moses Motor Co. car lot, where the "Firemen's Truck Bonanza" fundraising drive was underway. Shown above cooking the beans are Clarence Guthrie and O.B. Garriss, as John Harris, Roger Godsey and Edward Ferguson look on. The event, which featured food sales and a multi-category truck contest, was deemed an overwhelming success and generated a considerable amount of money, which was given to the firemen at their annual dinner Monday night in appreciation of their volunteer efforts during the year. Church turns waste metal into parish funds

If you've noticed a shortage of aluminum beverage cans along the roadsides and in the neighborhoods of Appomattox, here's an explanation . . .

Last week, Father Al Periera, pastor of Our Lady of Peace Roman Catholic Church here received nearly $400 on behalf of the church from Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company in return for 1770 pounds of aluminum beverage cans and other recyclable aluminum products.

The 45 families of Our Lady of Peace Church began an aluminum recycling drive, nearly 18 months ago to raise funds for some of the remaining church construction costs. The church was completed in September, 1981.

The collected aluminum was transported to Bent Creek, where parishioner and Chairman of the Church Aluminum Recycling Committee Paul Harris stored the aluminum in his barn.

When Harris noticed that the collected empties were taking up a bit too much space in his barn, he contacted Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company, which promptly arranged a special pickup of the aluminum from its recycling center in Lynchburg some 23 miles away.

The company was pleasantly surprised to find that Harris' collection crew had done such an excellent job of sorting out bi-metal cans from the recyclable aluminum, making Reynolds pick-up and payment a great deal easier and certainly more profitable for the church aluminum recycling committee.

"It's easy to discern the recyclable all-aluminum beverage cans from bi-metal cans," explains Tom Davis, the Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company representative who made the special pick-up. "All you have to do is take a magnet and place it to the side of a beverage can. If the magnet does not stick to the side of the can," he stressed, "the can is all-aluminum and can be purchased by Reynolds for recycling."

How did the church recycling program come about? "The program," explains Harris, "is actually an outgrowth of a parking lot clean-up performed by parish youth two years ago. We found that during the clean-up, they were picking up a great many aluminum cans which could be sold to Reynolds for recycling."

Dr. Al Fratrick, president of Our Lady of Peace Parish Council was delighted with the collection results and noted, "This is one fund-raising method we've found to be quite successful." Dr. Fratrick said the church will continue its aluminum recycling effort, using the funds from each Reynolds payment to cover the outstanding construction costs of the church.

According to Dr. Fratrick, before construction of the church, Roman Catholic residents of Appomattox County attended services at an abandoned schoolhouse, which served as a Mission. Earlier, the parishioners attended services at Holy Cross Church in Lynchburg.

As the county's Roman Catholic population grew, parishioners became increasingly interested in having a church built in Appomattox. They collectively raised $10,000 for the construction of the new church. This amount was boosted by a $40,000 contribution from the Archdiocese of Richmond under Bishop Walter Sullivan. The Catholic Extension Service (located in Chicago) also contributed $40,000.

Nonetheless, an additonal $30,000 still is needed to fully cover the costs of the construction, which suggests the church will continue its aluminum recycling activity as well as additional fund-raising methods for a significant period of time.

They have been getting a great deal of cooperation from many concerns in the community -- at least for the aluminum recycling effort. Harris noted that a number of stores, a motel, two fishing camps and even a Baptist group co ially have contributed aluminum to the church program.

Aside from the recycling program, Dr. Fratrick is pleased that the church completed in September, 1981 -- already has achieved a presence in the community. "We've been readily and warmly received by various Christian groups here in Appomattox and so many people have contributed to the success of the recycling program and the development of the church."

He mentioned also that the church builders worked very closely with members of the Parish Council throughout the planning process to help significantly reduce construction costs. He especially praised Rev. Father Al Periera for his dedication to the church and his parishioners. The priest serves in St. Victoria and Hurt as well as Appomattox.

The church's 45 member families collected the aluminum during an 18-month period. The funds will be used for the church's building fund. (Photo by Frances Paulette)

Local girls honored

Five Appomattox County 4-H'ers were among the 79 contestants in the Virginia Make-It-Yourself with Wool Contest held on Dec. 4, 1982 at the Sheraton Inn, Lynchburg.

There are four divisions of competition - Preteen - ages 10-13; Junior-ages 14-16; Senior-ages 17-24; and Adult-ages 25 and older. Only contestants from the Junior and Senior Divisions are eligible for National competition.

Capturing first place in the preteen division was Jennifer Coleman, 13, a 4-H'er and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Coleman. Placing fourth in the same division was Ann Paige Nolen, age 13 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Nolen.

Placing seventh was Valerie Guill, age 11 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Guill. There were 29 participants in the preteen division.

Cheryl Wooten, age 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wooten was one of the youngest of 18 participants in the Junior Division.

Placing first in the Senior Divison was Laura Walton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Walton. She will represent Virginia at the National Finals to be held January 25-28, 1983, in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Father Darkleaf

By CALVIN ROBINSON

There is an old saying, "A snow for every day represented by the date of the month the first snow falls." Alas, if the first snow is on my birthday, we will have 21 snows this winter. I vote nay. But we are now having a bit more seasonable weather. Over the mild week-end lots of lawnmowing was going on and it was springlike. Have seen several gardens plowed, and many experienced gardeners like to have it that way. Most leaf raking is behind us. Christmas wreaths are appearing on doors and have noted a lighted Christmas tree in my part of town. Time to mail Letters to Santa Claus, and put me down as a firm believer. Appomattox did not have a Christmas parade, but many have been held. A big one at Brookneal, for example. I am still thanking friends for the nice remembrance honoring Brightleaf and me on our recent Golden Wedding anniversary. Ah yes, December is a busy time. Hard time or no, Spirit of Christmas finds a way. From the ads, I notice a trend to practical gifts this year. Seems to me that the way to begin a Letter to Santa is by saying, "I have been good all year and hope you will come to see me and bring . . ." And the way to end a Letter to Santa is with a reminder to Santa to visit all the other boys and girls and remember Mom and Dad." And Grandma. In fact, is is not a good time to overlook anyone.

I have never met Kevin Ferguson, Jody Williams, Jeff Miller, Alan Edmonds, Tim Bennett, Rick Miller and the rest of the champion ACHS football team, but here's a salute. Wow, who would have dreamed that colleges like Alabama, U. N.C., Maryland, etc. would be in the recruiting scramble for our Raiders! Ferguson also starts in basketball, as seen in the recent cliffhanger game with Amherst. Note: I have written on a sealed paper my guess as to where Kevin will attend college. Just a hunch.

Saw a chartered bus in town Saturday and stopped to investigate. Lynchburg Bus Service had a huge tour bus with some 40-50 aboard, stopping in Appomattox. Chatted with the driver, John R. Russell and he is a veteran at taking people to places like Williamsburg, Washington, Atlantic City, etc. He noted that most of his tour groups to Historic Appomattox Park were from schools. A verse of No. 88, Bring Them In.

To be recognized as a classic of literature a writing must have extreme quality and class. To that end I am rereading John Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.

Notepad items . . . Ole Man River is flooding from Illinois to the Gulf and you do not have to be able to spell "Mississippi" to know that means "Take to the hills." . . . a feature news story in a Richmond newspaper featured veteran Petersburg Service station man, Frank Cawthorn. Retiring after long years in the business. From about 1939 I believe. Could that be "Mutt" Cawthorn, native of Appomattox.

Brett Marston wins big

Brett Marston, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Marston of the Red House community, has been recognized as the state and regional winner in the Southern Flue Cured Tobacco Information Committee's Tobacco Essay Contest.

The essay contest, whose topic was "Why Tobacco is Economically Important," was open to high school students in the states of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Students submitting essays were required to live on a farm whose income depends on tobacco.

Brett, an active member of 4-H for six years and an active member of the Appomattox Senior FFA Chapter, has not only worked in the family's tobacco operation, but also has completed projects in poultry and beef cattle. His winning essay can be found on page 5 inside.

The awards presentation was held in conjunction with the 1982 Southern Flue Cured Tobacco Festival in Greenville, N.C. As the state winner from Virginia, Brett received an engraved plaque and a check for $100.00. As the overall winner representing the five Flue Tobacco states, Brett received another engraved plaque and a check for $500.00.

The tobacco awards were presented by Mr. Atlas Wooten, President of the Tobacco Growers Information Committee based in Raleigh, N.C. The Tobacco Growers Information Committee (TGIC) helps keep farmers aware of the latest information regarding tobacco research, production practices and legislation concerning flue tobacco.

Renaissance Christmas Dinner is this Friday

The Appomattox community will be treated to its first Renaissance Christmas Dinner this Friday night (Dec. 10) starting at 7 p.m. in the Appomattox County High School cafeteria.

The setting for the evening will be that of an Old English Feast (often referred to as the Boar's Head Feast). The audience will be guests at Windsor Castle, where they will be fed the traditional Christmas fare; ham, green beans almondine, candied yams, winter salad and pumpkin pie -- all toasted by the wassail cup.

The audience will also be royally entertained by the Royal Court Singers; jesters, mummers, and acrobats.

The ACHS Chorale will perform music from the period, along with familiar Christmas carols. Members of the drama department will present a Medieval Christmas play entitled The Play of St. George, a production in which the title character slays a dragon and a Turkish knight in order to win his lady's love.

Other period music will be provided by members of the ACHS concert band and by the Handbell Choir of Vinton Baptist Church.

Tickets for what promises to be quite an evening will be $6 for adults and $4 for children. They may be purchased from any Chorale member.

Reservations may be made by calling Mr. Steve Lawrence at 352-5336 or the high school at 352-7146. Tickets are also available at Farmers National Bank, both branches. There will be limited seating so it is a good idea to reserve space early.
